

Abstract

A system for individuals' representation and data exchange using URLs with the individual's name as the subdomain and his affiliated organization as the domain. The URL has individual's information privacy control, exchangeable data, and spam-resistant communications channel. Exchange websites can use such individuals' representations, examples being contacts management system, eCommerce exchange systems, matchmaking services and discussion forums. Branding assessments result from using the system.